Project

Field(s) Intangible and tangible heritage, Applied heritage, Architecture, Cultural heritage, Heritage restoration/conservation, Digitalization

Description As an institution that has more than 50 years of experience in heritage protection, we came to acknowledge that we are in the moment where we are facing lack of funds, means and personnel, even though the "heritage commercialization" is growing. Existing model of heritage protection shows to be inadequate, without overall vision, focusing mainly on tangible heritage and generating low visibility.

Our aim is to develop a project that would deal with a concept of applied heritage, especially with its aspect of social/public engagement. We are in the need of model that would set the path for heritage to play a role, not only in the area of heritage protection and economic development, but also as a tool that strengthens social development and brings positive change.
